Carrollton, GA - The early signing period for collegiate volleyball signees has ended and UWG head coach Gary Lee announced the signing of three high school standouts who will join the Wolves' roster in 2010. "Each of these young women brings something new to the fold," said Lee. "We expect them to be the type of players who can make an immediate impact on the court for us."

The 2010 recruiting class through the early signing period features players from both coasts. Reagin Boggs of Loganville and Mandy Black of Dallas are Georgia standouts and Emily Reul comes to Carrollton by way of San Bernardino, CA.

Lee and his new recruits will look to return West Georgia to prominence in the rugged Gulf South Conference East Division in 2010. The Wolves' last trip to the conference tournament was in 2007, winning the GSC and advancing to the South Regional. "We are truly looking to build the program here from the ground up," Lee said. "If we can continue to sign the caliber of players that we have this fall, things will definitely move in a positive direction for the program."
